Transnational Universities

The term Transnational Universities describes universities that operate in multiple jurisdictions and are not part of a single national system of education, although they may be legally registered in one or more jurisdictions and are required to comply with relevant legislation governing the delivery of higher education in the countries where they operate. Such institutions include transnational consortiums of existing universities that offer programmes in their own right or as joint degrees between providers located in different nations, universities which are under religious rather than governmental direction and other providers of adult education, typically delivering programmes through distance or blended learning via the Internet and affiliated campus centres.

UNESCO Centre (commonly known as UNESCO-WHED, English: UNESCO Centre Central and South America), is a Non profit Organization. Its first appointed Director was Professor Daniel Odin (Ph.D) ^[1]

History

Since 2011 the world has welcome the advent of a new UNESCO Centre, first stablished in British Virgin Islands as Company Number 1675844 ^[2], but soon enough spread to whole Central and South America ^[3]

UNESCO Centre applied for its Trademark within the USPTO ^[4]

UNESCO Centre, got a Notice of Allowance (NOA), on 2017 by the USPTO ^[5]

Recently UNESCO Centre launched a worldwide campaign to promote, under the title The UNESCO You Don't Know ^[6]

Among the options, UNESCO Centre list not only traditional Governmental approved Universities, but also transnational universities ^[7]

A complete listing of Universities ^[8], International Directories ^[9] and Regional Accrediting Organizations | Evaluation Agencies | Associations of International Academic Credential Evaluation Services ^[10], are all free accessible to anyone.

UNESCO Centre includes its own version for the International handbook of Universities ^[11], which is free to download at their site.

A lot of other features, such as World University Ranking, International handbook of Universities on Play Store ^[12] are making out of UNESCO Centre a valuable option.

For a further details, read the Article on NBC12 ^[13] or visit UNESCO application within the USPTO Office ^[14]
